

THE CALL

A BIWEEKLY PUBLICATION OF ROANOKE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE

SOLAR POWER

Roanoke SolarShare makes its community debut

While food, festivities and eco-friendly displays were among the highlights of the co-op's recent Earth Day Fair, it was its new community solar program that stole the spotlight. Called "Roanoke SolarShare," this special offering makes access to affordable solar power within better reach for all member-owners. To learn more about how you can tap into this innovative renewable energy resource, read more.

PROFILING PROMISE

Is local forestry turning over a new leaf?

"My granddaddy taught me how to work the land. And I want to pass it along to my children and grandchildren too." Among many African-American forest landowners, this sentiment is a familiar refrain – one too often muted by the societal odds stacked against such intentions. But a new narrative is emerging – one that began to unfold when Roanoke Electric Co-op joined forces with a community partner to plant seeds of transformation. Read all about it.

POLLING PLACE

Are you ready to get your early vote on?

For those interested in taking advantage of early voting, The Roanoke Center has announced dates and times that it will be open as a polling station. If you want to get a jump start on the voting action, check this out.

TALK TIME

Straight Talk series continues

Next stop in the Straight Talk series of forums: Bertie County High School in Windsor, May 3. This will be followed by our next forum: Gates County High School on May 17th. Both meetings begin at 6 p.m.

For member-owners, these popular gatherings are a great opportunity to receive valuable updates on Roanoke Electric Co-op's programs and services. For more information, read more.

SURVEY TIME

Most wanted: Your feedback on co-op services

How are we doing? Roanoke Electric Co-op wants to know. Through the end of this month, the co-op will be reaching out to member-owners by phone and email to conduct its annual satisfaction survey. We welcome your participation, as that is critical in measuring overall satisfaction with co-op services. Read more.
